HONOR BEING PUT TO A TEST.

The mugwumps elected him (Cleveland) in alledged anxiety for a better civil service, and he has turned the best we ever had into chaos. How long will they continue to worship the fallen Dagon? It is represented that Mr. Cleveland believes himself to be a "man of destiny." In the history of the world the "men of destiny," who in pursuit of selfish ends have repudiated moral obligations, have been taught by reverses that the laws of God are not suspended for their personal benefit.—Hartford Courant.

The mugwumps worship Cleveland because they are stubborn. It is not that he has made good a single promise he made the mugwumps, that they "stick" to him, but that they dislike to acknowledge themselves sold. Mr. Cleveland's sincerity has been put to a test and has been found wanting, and the honor of the mugwumps is being put to a test, and that is failing. Here is a fact: "In two years and four months this administration had appointed postmasters to 45,873 out of the 55,157 postoffices in the country. Under republican administrations a considerable number of democrats were postmasters, especially in southern states, and wherever the numerical preponderance of democrats made the selection of a republican a source of irritation. It is probably safe to say that nine-tenths of the postmasters are now democrats, and moreover, most of the remaining offices are so small and unprofitable that it is difficult and in very many cases impossible to find anybody who will take them. Practically there has been a clean sweep, as the civil service reform association at its annual meeting sadly confessed."

Here is another fact, and this one is stated by the republican convention of Pennsylvania: "The only energy the democrats have exhibited has been in the displacement of experienced officers without cause, and in direct violation of their civil service pledges."

A party of professed reformers of the civil service must have a very queer idea of that reform which will remove 45,373 postmasters in twenty-eight months, or 1,477 each month, and fifty-seven each working day, over seven each working hour, and one in a little over eight minutes for the entire time the democratic party has been in power. Mr. Cleveland has done this, and on the supposition that he is a democrat and is running a democratic administration, it is all right; but on the supposition that he is running a business man's administration in which a public office is a public trust and the tenure of office depends upon a faithful discharge of duty, then the administration is all wrong.

In the face of these facts, the mugwumps still continue to worship Cleveland. Their honor as independent voters has been thoroughly tested, and has proved a miserable failure. They will still go on praising Cleveland because they don't want to march down hill after having marched up. This is the secret of the mugwump press doing honor to Cleveland.

The Hon. Henry B. Metcalf, of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, who has been known for many years as a believer in prohibition, but as a believer also in practical methods of temperance work in politics, has written an able letter in reply to the Rev. Dr. Miner's recent attack upon the anti saloon movement within the republican party of Massachusetts. Mr. Metcalf shows forcibly the folly of hoping to advance the cause of temperance by bringing into power the party that has always been the special friend of the liquor power, and a peaking as a prohibitionist reminds Dr Miner that within six or seven years seven states, which gave 170,222 plurality for Blaine, have given a direct popula, vote of 179,614 majority for prohibition casting 945,248 votes for undiluted prohibition, while giving only 49,094 votes for St. John. He says with a good deal of pertinency, that he knows of no authority competent to declare that the nearly 900,000 who did not vote for St. John are not in every way as loyal to the cause of prohibition as the 49,000 who did vote for him. Kansas is loyal to prohibition, and yet she gave St. John less than two per cent. of her vote. If the 900,000 believe that more can be gained for temperance within the republican party than outside of it, their opinion certainly seems entitled to greater respect than that of the 49,000 who because they cannot get everything at once, prefer to lose it all.

The Gazette has time and time again printed some facts in regard to the blighting influence of Washington clerkships upon the average young men and women who accept them. It was for this reason that General Belknap advised his son, who greatly wanted a clerkship in one of the departments, not to accept such a position. The son was stubborn but his father dissuaded him and advised him to undertake any other employment that was honorable. The young man secured a job as railroad brakeman and stuck to it. Now he is assistant superintendent of the road.

Nothing has been done. The surplus is increasing. Taxation is not reduced. The tariff has not been revised.—New York World.

All these things that this democratic administration has not done, just fits the history of the democratic party exactly. It promised a great deal three years ago, but has done nothing because it could not do anything. It didn't intend to do anything when it started in, and it won't do anything creditable from this time till it goes out of power a year and a half hence.

There are 21,000,000 milk cans in the United States, but they are unable, even with the assistance of the water supply, to furnish all that people want to drink.

It has been suggested that the crying need of this country is more cows that the people may have more milk, and the just about hits the case. A dairy is a good deal better than a distillery.

The various computations of the amount spent yearly in this country on liquor are very curious. One speaker at a temperance meeting at Brockton, Mass., the other night asserted that from the sum spent every year on liquor a thousand one-dollar gold pieces might be put on each word in the bible, and that even then there would be $66,000 to spare.

We have yet to hear of southern democrat paper that has had anything to say in condemnation of the infamous Glenn Chain-Gang bill. nearly all of them demand its passage.

Will the Detroit Tribune, from which the foregoing paragraph is taken, be kind nough to name a single democrat even n the north that has condemned the Glenn bill.

Medical journals tell of an imbecile, now forty-three years old, who has such a remarkable memory that he could compile a complete directory of those whom he has met during forty years of his life. It would be a pretty good thing if the present administration had some of that imbecile's memory. It seems to have forgotten every promise it ever made.

There are three special features that will mark the campaign of '88. It will be Blaine and Cleveland, there will be no accident on account of anybody's mouth going off to the detriment of the republicans, and the republicans will get there

AFFAIRS AT HAVANA.

Conflicting Reports Concerning the Trouble—Cubans Discredit It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Cubans in this city do not think there is any far-reaching or in any sense an important uprising in Havana. J. M. Celallos, of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Company, says that one of his steamships left that city on the 24th and on that date there was no trouble there. The populace was aware that acting Governor-General Martinn was determined to deal with the corrupt employes of the custom-house after the most summary fashion, and the chief dissatisfaction existed among those persons and such merchants as have profited by the illicit importation of goods. The volunteer soldiery of Cuba is almost exclusively composed of native Spaniards, who are in harmony with the policy of the Government. When General Martinh seized the stores in the Duana many persons who were incommoded and indignant at not receiving their property may have incited a few persons to riot, but the disturbance can be in no sense important.

Edward Molina, former editor of El Cronista and at present secretary of the Spanish Chamber of Commerce in this city, was equally incredulous. He declared that the published dispatch from Key West was absurdly false.

Captain Fairfield, for the steamship Cienfuegos, who arrived in port yesterday, said that when his ship left Havana on the 25th affairs were in an exceedingly turbulent state. He was not surprised to hear that the feeling against General Martinh had already culminated in a serious riotous demonstration.

A RATE WAR.

Residents of Cincinnati Reaping the Benefit of Troubles Between Rival Transportation Companies.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—The railroads, while not entering into an old-fashioned cutting of rates, have been arranging matters so that there is a good deal of travel at a cost much below schedule prices. The Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis & Chicago road some days ago offered 1,000-mile tickets at $20 without the usual restrictions. All other Cincinnati roads have come to the same rate. Two rival roads have offered round-trip tickets, limited, to Pittsburgh for $3.50. The New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio sold excursion tickets to Lakewood, N. Y., for $3.50, and the Bee Line to Cleveland for $4. All these enabled Eastern passengers to get cut rates even if they threw away the return tickets.

Base-Ball.

National League games on Monday resulted as follows: At Washington—Chicago, 5; Washington, 2. At Boston—Detroit, 10; Boston, 2. At Philadelphia—Pittsburgh, 7; Philadelphia, 6. At New York—New York, 5; Indianapolis, 4 (ten innings).

American Association: At St. Louis—St. Louis, 7; Brooklyn, 5. At Cleveland—Cleveland, 8; Baltimore, 6. At Louisville—Louisville, 14; Metropolitan, 8. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 7; Athletic, 5.

Northwestern League: At Milwaukee (two games)—Milwaukee, 7; La Crosse, 5; Milwaukee, 16; La Crosse, 6. At Des Moines—Des Moines, 7; Oshkosh, 4. At Minneapolis—Minneapolis, 18; Eau Claire, 15.

Reclaiming Indemnity Lands.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Acting Land Commissioner Stockslager has issued the necessary instructions to carry into effect Secretary Lamar's recent order restoring to settlement and entry certain railroad indemnity lands as follows:

Southern Pacific railroad, of California, about 4,000,000 acres; the Dallas Military road, of Oregon, about 1,200,000 acres; the Alabama & Chattanooga railroad, of Alabama, about 2,500 acres covered by unapproved selections; the Vicksburg & Meridian railroad, of Mississippi, about 1,000 acres, also covered by unapproved selections.

An Elephant at Large.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Aug. 30.—The largest elephant of Robbins' circus got away yesterday afternoon and swam across Smith's pond. He then went through the town at a lively pace, turned west and followed the river some distance, destroying many fences, got into a field where there were a number of cattle, and after chasing them around for a while got on the Grand Trunk railroad track and is still on the road west about six miles from here. There are a number of men with two other elephants after him.

Rough Weather at Sea.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 30.—The pleasure steamer Mohican arrived here yesterday from the Clyde, bearing a party of gentlemen who came over to witness the yacht-race for the America's cup. The Mohican also had on board nineteen persons taken Sunday from the ship Lillian, which had been wrecked by a gale. The Lillian was abandoned 300 miles east of Halifax. During her passage the Mohican encountered two terrific hurricanes, and was badly damaged when she reached Halifax.

Fatal Result of a Camp-Meeting Row.

WEST UNION, W. Va. Aug. 30.—F. M. Mencar had a difficulty with Frank Males at the Salvation Army camp-meeting ground at Smithton Sunday over an affray between Mencar's son and another boy. Monday evening Males threw a stone against Mencar's window, and, calling him out, shot him through the breast, killing instantly. Males gave himself up and was taken to Clarksburg for safe keeping.

Senator Stanford's Position Indorsed by the Court.

A DECISION BY SUPREME JUSTICE FIELD.

The Pacific Commission Not a Judicial Body and Can Not Compel the Production of Testimony Against the Road.

A VICTORY FOR STANFORD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 30.—Justice Field, of the United States Supreme Court, delivered his opinion yesterday morning in the matter of the petition of the Pacific Railway Commissioners to compel Senator Leland Stanford to answer certain questions respecting the Central Pacific railway management, and particularly to explain certain vouchers of the railway company, and whether any money represented in certain unexplained vouchers was used to influence National or State legislation. The matter was argued before Justice Field, sitting with United States Circuit Judge Sawyer and United States District Judges Hoffman and Sabin last Monday. The chief question raised was to determine the power of the Railway Commission to compel the witness in question to answer their queries. The court decides that the Pacific Railway Commission is not a judicial body. It possesses no judicial power. It can determine no right of the Government or of the companies investigated by it. Its report to the President will not even be admissible in a judicial inquiry as evidence of any matters investigated. It is a mere board of inquiry to obtain information on certain matters and report the result to the President and to Congress. It is authorized to invoke the aid of the United States courts in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses, the production of books, papers and documents, and such courts may, in case of refusal of a witness to obey the subpœna, issue an order requiring such witness to obey, and to produce books and papers and answer questions. The citizen's right of personal security involves not only the protection of his person from assault, but the exemption of his private affairs, books and papers from the scrutiny of others. The law compels the production in judicial proceedings of such documents as effect the interest of others or which are necessary to the prosecution of criminals, and in only one of those ways can they be obtained and made public against the will of the owners. In Boyd vs. the United States (116 U. S., 611) the Supreme Court said: "Any compulsory discovery by extorting the party's oath or compelling the production of his private books and papers to convict him of crimes or to forfeit his property is contrary to the principles of free government." This had reference to criminal proceedings, but is applicable to any such production of private books and papers of a party otherwise than in the course of judicial proceedings or a direct suit for that purpose. It is a forcible intrusion into and compulsory exposure of one's private affairs and papers without judicial process in the course of judicial proceedings, which is contrary to the principles of free government and abhorrent to the instincts of Englishmen and Americans.

In Hallett, Kilbourne vs. Thompson (112 U. S. 168), Thompson had refused to obey an order of the House of Representatives to produce books and papers, and was by order of the Speaker confined in jail forty-five days, when he was released on habeas corpus by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. He sued the Sergeant-at-Arms, and the Supreme Court of the United States held that Congress did not possess the power to inquire into the private affairs of private citizens.

The decision proceeds:

"The act creating this commission authorizes it to inquire whether the directors, officers or employes of the Central Pacific are interested in other business corporations with which undertakings or leases have entered into, but they are limited in their inquiries as to the interest of such officers in other business to such matters as these persons may choose to disclose. They were not prohibited from engaging in other lawful business because of their interest in and connection with the Central Pacific, and that other business might as well be the construction and management of other railroads as the planting of fruit, to which some of them have in fact been engaged.

"With reference to vouchers, respecting which the principal interrogatories are propounded to which we are asked to compel answers from witnesses, it is conceded by the commission in this motion that the moneys converted by them were not charged against the United States in ascertaining the net earnings of the company. If such were the case it is difficult to see what interest the United States can have in the disposition of these moneys. The courts can not, upon that concession, aid the commission in ascertaining how moneys were expended. It would seem as though Congress intended that the court should make the order sought upon the mere request of the commission, without regard to the nature of the inquiry, but it is difficult to believe that it could have intended that the court should thus be the mere executor of the commissioners' will; and yet if the commissioners are not bound, as above described, the conclusion we have reached makes it unnecessary to consider whether the questions were proper in themselves. The courts can not be made instruments to aid the commission. The court, therefore, declines to make an order giving the commission access to the books of the construction companies and compelling the officers to answer questions."

"Boodler" McClaughrey.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—A petition for the pardon of R. S. McClaughrey, the first of the Cook County boodlers to take his "medicine" at Joliet, is being industriously circulated and generally signed by members of the Grand Army of the Republic. The political influence which the local branches of the organization represent is to be cemented as far as possible to bring about the McClaughrey pardon.

Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain." THE INDIAN WAR.

Official Report on the Recent Skirmish with Colorow.

THE ATTACK ON THE REDS UNPROVOKED.

Later News Places the Number of Killed at Five Whites and Nine Indians —The Utes Thirsting for Revenge.

LATEST FROM THE FRONT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The Adjutant-General of the army has received a dispatch from General Terry at Chicago, inclosing a report to Indian Agent Byrnes, dated August 26, from Lieutenant Burnett, Ninth Cavalry, who, with twelve troopers, was sent by request of Indian Agent Byrnes to prevent the invasion of the Indian reservation by the Colorado State troops and cowboys near the border of the reservation. Lieutenant Burnett says:

"The Colorado militia, under Major Leslie, and some cowboys surprised Colorow's camp at about six a. m. yesterday, after having assured Colorow at Wolf creek the day before that they would be allowed to go back to the reservation unmolested. The attack was a complete surprise to the Indians. One child was killed and one man and one woman slightly wounded. The Indians returned the fire, killing one cowboy, wounding three others, and mortally wounding three militia soldiers. I talked with Major Leslie this morning, explaining the situation to him, and came to an understanding. He assured me he would not cross the reservation line without orders from proper authority. I sent a note to Sheriff Kendall giving him your message that if he had any warrants to serve to serve them through you. This was in reply to a letter from him in regard to warrants in his possession for Colorow and others. I am satisfied that my presence prevented serious fighting and much loss of life, thanks to the influence of Interpreter Curtis.

"Indians Ungashel, Wass, Cavanaugh and many others want peace if possible, or then war to the knife. I think the trouble is over. Most of the Indians left at once to see you. I will camp to-night about twenty-five miles from the agency and come in to-morrow if nothing prevents."

General Terry also incloses the following from Fort Duchesne:

"Agent Byrnes has shown great discretion constantly. He has the confidence of his Indians perfectly, and if they are not attacked on their reservation will hold them securely. They are well armed and superbly mounted. None of those who have lived on the reservation went to Colorow's assistance until after the attack. It is reported by Barnett that he is now on the reservation. If further pursuit is made by the Colorado troops they will stay with him and make a terrible tale of bloodshed. The tribe is armed and preparing for the defensive."

General Terry says he has communicated these dispatches to General Crook at Rawlins.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 30.—A telegram from Meeker says that late information regarding Thursday's battle with Colorow shows that five whites were killed, instead of two, and four wounded, and that seven Indians and two squaws were killed and five wounded. There has been no fighting since Thursday, but over 600 Indians are camped within six miles. The Indians are ready to fight at the least provocation. The loss of nearly 300 ponies and their squaws has made them wild, and they are ready for revenge.

Sheriff Kendall's force now numbers perhaps 250 men. Kendall has a herd of Indian ponies that he captured, and the Indians are watching these closely from the mountains. If he should attempt to move toward Meeker with these he would be followed. The colored troops are finding it difficult to hold the Indians together. The latter have a supreme contempt for black soldiers, and so did the Apaches until experience taught them differently.

Colorow and some of his force held a powwow with an equal number of troops under command of Captain Pray Friday. They gave their opinion of the cowboys in unmistakable language, and did not care particularly about getting into any controversy with them, but they demanded that the soldiers be sent back or they would be compelled to make a big fight.

From the scattered information received the Indians number anywhere from 400 to 600. The regular troops number about 250 and the State force nearly if not quite as many. The State forces are now acting on the defensive and the Indians are held in check by the regulars, or from the fact that they are not yet prepared to assume the offensive. Peace may be the result, but more bloodshed is just as likely to follow. The death of Lieutenant Folsom has embittered the whites, and a citizen of Glenwood Springs, where Folsom resided, has sworn out a warrant charging Colorow with his murder. This document has been sent to Sheriff Kendall by a special courier, and it will only serve to complicate matters.

Dr. Parker's Visit.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Dr. Joseph Parker, of London, and his wife left the hotel yesterday at the invitation of Deacon Richardson, of Brooklyn, to visit the tomb of Mr. Beecher in Greenwood Cemetery. They will go in a few days to visit Mrs. Beecher at Stamford, Conn. Dr. Parker will occupy Plymouth Church pulpit on October 2, and the eulogy on Mr. Beecher will be delivered in the Brooklyn Academy of Music on October 4.

Healy's Contempt for the Proclamation.

CORK, Aug. 30.—Maurice Healy, addressing a meeting of the National League last evening, said that the people of Ireland would wipe their boots with the Government's proclamation, which Irishmen, with the support of the English democracy, flouted and despised. Coercion, he said, would entail a great deal of suffering in Ireland, but in the end it would prove to have been a blessing in disguise.

Paymasters Must Pay.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A large number of army paymasters who are in arrears to the Government have been notified through the Paymaster-General that they must make an early settlement. Hereafter, but six months' time will be allowed after the expiration of the bonds of disbursing officers for them to balance their accounts with the Government.

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

Proceedings of the Conference of Charities and Corrections.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS CONSIDERED.

Methods for Bringing Up the Child in the Way He Should Go Talked Over—Allen Paupers and Criminals Discussed.

ANOTHER CHAPTER ON CHARITY.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 30.—In the Charities convention yesterday morning the committees on moral and industrial education and on child saving reported and discussed together. The Illinois plan of county and State aid to private institutions was severely criticised. The evils of relieving parents too easily of the care of their children was dwelt upon by several speakers. Rev. Dr. Dana, of St. Paul, read a paper on primitive work, in which he advances theories for saving the young from joining the great army of criminals. The utmost effort should be expended before the first step in the downward path is taken. Mrs. Fairbanks, of Iowa, submitted a report on child-saving work. In this connection Mrs. Pierce, of Davenport, read a paper in which the trials of working-girls were set forth. She suggested for such pleasant places of resort, reading-rooms, amusements, etc., and a hearty greeting as they visit these places. Organize them into societies such as lend a hand, get them to work for each other, stimulate them to sympathy for each other, a feeling of responsibility for their class, and they can reach many that no one else can.

Mr. Skinner, of the New York Children's Aid Society, spoke at length of their work in placing children in the West and denied that any large percentage of such children gravitated to the jails of the Western States. Andrew Elmore, of Wisconsin, denied all that, and asserted that more than a moderate proportion turned out very badly. He claimed that these colonies of children from the Five Points of New York corrupted the communities where they were placed and taught the rural children vices they would otherwise never learn. Rosenau, of Buffalo, told of the school for working people in New York, which begins with the child of three in the kindergarten, takes it through an ordinary school until fourteen, and a night school until seventeen, graduating its pupils at last with a better training for practical life than most colleges or technological schools. This school is conducted by the Ethical Culture Society of New York, under Felix Adler, and employs the best teachers it can secure.

In the afternoon the Committee on Alien Paupers and Criminals reported and another lively discussion ensued. Hoyt, of New York, took the view that we have too many undesirable immigrants, which he proved by a long string of tiresome statistics as to per cent. of paupers, lunatics and criminals of foreign birth. Garrett, of Pennsylvania, doubted the adequacy of the figures, and thought we needed more laborers for the harvest. Hill, of Oregon, contended that if we exclude Chinese at the West we should exclude the Huns, Poles and others at the East. Sanborn, of Massachusetts, took a middle ground and thought immigration from Europe was governed by natural laws and that we can no more exclude them than the European powers have been able to keep them at home. He claimed that the management at Castle Garden is very bad, and possibly fraudulent, and desired a temporary change to a Federal instead of a State system, to be followed by a better State system, which shall have officers not only on the seaboard but in each large center, with power to return undesirable comers. Rev. Myron Reed, of Denver, one of the numerous suggested successors to Henry Ward Beecher, by the way, spoke of the overplus of labor and the low wages of the Western States and desired a check on the influx of a low grade of labor as destructive of American citizenship.

At night the Committee on Insanity, through its chairman, Dr. Richard Dewey, of Illinois, submitted an elaborate report. The principal points covered suggests that the calling of an asylum attendant, like every other vocation in life, needs training and experience. A training school is desirable because the calling demands skill and intelligence of a higher order. The average attendant is not of that order and therefore must be educated. Greater permanency of service would then be secured and the administration of institutions for the insane would be more satisfactory.

Jockey West Badly Injured.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 30.—In the first race here yesterday a collision occurred between the horses at the head of the stretch, Zeb Ward, Sadie Mac, Music and Fountain all going down. Jockey West was badly hurt. His head was cut open and he received other injuries. Penny and Winchell were severely shaken up. Barrett escaped with a slight shock. Penny had his skull fractured. West has been unconscious since the accident. His head was cut open by a horse's hoot and he sustained internal injuries. Although his condition is very precarious, the physician thinks he may possibly come around again.

Important Railway Decision.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 30.—In the case of the Dubuque Board of Trade against the St. Paul and Illinois Central railroads, for refusing to switch the cars of competing lines on their Dubuque sidings, the Iowa Railroad Commissioners decided in favor of the petitioners. The commissioners hold that side-tracks are public highways within the meaning of the statute, and that the companies operating them are bound to haul over them the cars of all other companies at reasonable rates, whether the business be competitive or not.

Deserved All They Got.

CRADOCK, Neb., Aug. 30.—Two men tried to force their way into the residence of Mr. John Bott, of this town, Monday. Mrs. Bott was alone in the house, and she told the men to go away. They forced the door and rushed toward her, but as they were about to lay their hands on her the intrepid woman shot them down, and they will die.

Charged with Treason.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Two secretaries of General Ferron, Minister of War, have been arrested for disclosing to Figaro the plans for carrying out the mobilization scheme and thus allowing its publication contrary to the Government's wishes. The charge against them is high treason.

Merely an Annexation Scheme.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 30.—General Manager Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific railway, asserts that the Red River Valley railway project is in the interest of the movement for the annexation of Manitoba to the United States. The grading of the new line has been completed.

Meeting of the Illinois Grange.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 30.—The State Grange of Patrons of Husbandry will hold a four-days' session here from to-day to Friday of the present week. Instructive papers will be read, and a period of rest and recreation indulged in.

In order to give all a chance to test it and thus be convinced of its wonderful curative powers, Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will be, for a limited time, given away. THE HADDOCK MURDER.

Fred Muncbrath, One of the Defendants, to Be Tried Monday.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 30.—The district court convened here yesterday, Judge Wakefield presiding. The case of Fred Munchrath, one of the defendants charged with the murder of Rev. Dr. Haddock, was set for trial next Monday. The defense made a strong effort to have Arensdorf's case, which was tried at the March term, again called, but the State elected to have Munchrath's case tried next. It is believed that the State has a much stronger case against Munchrath than was presented against Arensdorf, and that if any thing approaching an honest jury can be secured he will be convicted. The question of a jury is the most important one. The movements of the officers, therefore, are being closely watched by the public. The State's Attorney yesterday stated that the next defendant in the Haddock case to be tried would be Sylvester Grenda.

A Chinese Complexion.

When observed in one of the Caucasian race, is indicative of bile in the blood. Who would be yellow when he or she can exhibit the hue of health on cheek and brow through the aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, anantagonist at whose onset liver complaint takes refuge in flight. Fur upon the tongue, nausea, sick headache, pains under the right ribs and shoulder blade, an unpleasantly odorous breath, are remediable with this benign alterative, which does not, like a potent cathartic, drench the intestines or, like the mercurial preparations, contaminate he blood. Not only the liver but the stomach and bowels are aroused, toned and regulated by this fine family medicine, which has won the confidence of the respectable classes, not by startling assertions on its behalf, but by the consistency of the claims made for it with its performance in every instance when tested.

Old and reliable Medicines are the best to depend upon. Acker's Blood Elixir has been prescribed for years for all impurities of the Blood. In every form of Scrofulous, Syphilitic or Mercurial diseases, it is invaluable. For Rheumatism, has no equal. Sold by Prentice & Evenson D. P O

WANTED TO PRACTICE.

Volunteer Firemen of Plainfield, N. J., Found to Have Been the Originators of Numerous Incendiary Fires.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Aug. 30.—Seven members of the Plainfield fire department are under arrest. They are Theodore Vanness, livery-stableman; Lewis Vanness, carpenter; Horace Vanness, night watchman; George Reed, machinist; Philip Hapenny, painter; Robert Skinner, an expressman, and John Jackson, a well-driver. They are accused of being the originators of the hundred or more incendiary fires that have taken place in the city during the last ten or twelve years. Jackson and a confederate were caught in the act of firing a house on Grand avenue early Sunday morning. Jackson is said to have made a confession which will convict all of the accused.

The fires became so numerous about a year ago that a Pinkerton detective was employed by the insurance companies to ferret out the incendiary. The detective became acquainted with a number of firemen, and circumstances occurred which turned his suspicions in that direction. Following up the clew he soon became "hale fellow well met" with the firemen, was admitted to their secrets, and in less than a month he was convinced that the majority of the fires were started by members of the company, "just for the fun of the thing." He put up a job by which Jackson, as stated, was caught in the act of firing a house, and his arrest and confession followed.

A BIG BLAZE.

Extensive Cooperage Works near Detroit Burned, Causing a Loss of About $200,000.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 30.—The works of the Anchor Manufacturing Company, on the river Rouge, four miles below this city, were burned yesterday morning. The works covered twenty acres and employed 400 men. The cooperage works turned out 4,000 barrels daily. The fire started in the dry-kilns and spread to the eight remaining buildings, taking with it lumber piles, seasoned thin lumber and much valuable property. The works were owned principally by Peter Havermeyer's Sons, of the New York sugar refinery. The fire department recently put in at a cost of $12,000 was wholly inadequate to prevent the spread of the fire, which did $300,000 damage.

The insurance aggregates only $61,000 on the burned buildings, risks being so great that it was almost impossible to obtain more. The business of the Anchor Manufacturing Company is the making of the one-stave barrel and kindred cooperage and heading supplies. It is a very extensive establishment and employs about 400 hands.

PLENTY OF CASH.

Figures Which a New York Journal Thinks Should Dispel Apprehensions of a Money Famine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The net imports of gold during the last thirteen months were $40,000,000. With the domestic production during the same period, this makes a total addition to the circulating medium of over $70,000,000 in a little more than a year. The prospects are that before the end of the year a further addition of from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be made to the gold in the country. The Evening Post believes that these facts ought to dispel all apprehension as to an impending money famine.

A Mill Wrecked.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 30.—A special to the Evening Wisconsin from Brodhead, Wis., says the foundation of the Brodhead roller mill was undermined on account of quicksand early Sunday morning, and that the first floor collapsed, carrying down the machinery, 2,000 bushels of grain, 500 sacks of flour and a quantity of feed. One hundred barrels of flour were ruined, and the wheat is almost a total loss. Some of the flour and feed will be saved in a damaged condition. The loss is estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000. The mill was owned by Stephen C. Pierce, and operated by Beantree & Holcomb.

A Burglar's Awful Fate.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Jimmy McDevitt, a notorious character, was surprised by a porter early yesterday morning in a store in White street, which he had entered for burglarious purposes. The porter locked the door and called for the police. McDevitt attempted to escape through a window, but was caught on the edges of the broken glass by the stomach and disemboweled. He was dead when released. An accomplice who was watching on the outside was arrested. McDevitt was a nephew of "Jimmy" Elliott, the prize-fighter, who was murdered by Jere Dunn in Chicago a few years ago.

Wants to Become a State.

SHOSHONE, I. T., Aug. 30.—United States Senator Hearst, with Governor Stevenson and Delegate Dubois, recently held a conference here regarding the proposed enlargement of the boundaries of Idaho with reference to Statehood, which Idaho expects soon to demand with the other Territories. Senator Stewart's scheme to annex Nevada to Idaho has entirely collapsed. At this conference it was suggested that the Idaho line be extended northward through Montana, so as to take in the counties of Beaverhead and Missoula.

Paper-Dealers Fail.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—William St. Clair Ross, doing business as W. St. Clair Ross & Co., at Elm and Third streets, assigned yesterday to H. P. Lloyd. The firm has been doing a large business as paper manufacturers and wholesale dealers in envelopes, cards, etc. Their failure was precipitated by Eastern failures. Among the preferred creditors are the Queen City National Bank, $19,000, and Lida H. Ross, $8,000. The liabilities are estimated at $40,000, with assets $25,000. The firm had been in business about a year.

National Finances.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Notwithstanding the large pension payments this month, amounting to $16,500,000, the receipts for the month, to date, are more than $7,500,000 in excess of the total expenditures during the same period. The receipts have averaged over $1,000,000 a day, and now amount to $13,814,356.

The Wires Taken Out.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—The Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company has been admitted to the privileges of the Board of Trade, having removed its wires from the bucket-shops throughout the country. The Board of Trade now appears to be master of the situation, as all the telegraph companies have discontinued the serving of bucket-shops.

Waylaid and Shot.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Aug. 30.—George Arnott, a farmer residing near Rome, Ill., was waylaid Saturday night and shot three times by unknown parties. He will hardly recover. Arnott was a very quarrelsome man and the shooting is supposed to be the result of an old feud.

To Have Charge of the Lincoln Homestead.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 30.—The Lincoln homestead trustees met yesterday and selected Mr. O. H. Oldroyd custodian of the home at a salary of $1,000 per annum, and thus the memorial collection will eventually be secured to the State.

Give Them a Chance.

That is to say your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

There is no denying the fact that Dr Jones' Red Clover Tonic is the most successful blood purifier ever put on the market. Its wonderful cures in all stomach, kidney and liver troubles has brought out many imitations. It restores debilitated nerve tissues, restoring the force lost by sickness, mental work or excessive use of liquor, opium and tobacco Prentibe & Evenson will supply the genuine at 50 cents a bottle.

WOMAN'S KINGDOM.

Sermon by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

Two Distinct Empires, the Masculine and the Feminine—To Make Home Happy, the One Grand and All-Absorbing Right of Woman.

"Woman's Opportunity" was the subject of Dr. Talmage's recent discourse at The Hamptons. He chose for his text the twenty-seventh verse of the first chapter of Genesis: "So God created man in His own image, the image of God created He him; male and female created He them." The sermon was as follows:

In other words God, who can make no mistake, made man and woman for a specific work and to move in particular spheres—man to be regnant in his realm, woman to be dominant in hers. The boundary line between Italy and Switzerland, between England and Scotland, is not more thoroughly marked than this distinction between the empire masculine and the empire feminine. So entirely dissimilar are the fields to which God called them that you can no more compare them than you can oxygen and hydrogen, water and grass, trees and stars. All this talk about the superiority of one sex to the other sex is an everlasting waste of ink and speech.

A jeweler may have a scale so delicate that he can weigh the dust of diamonds; but where are the scales so delicate that you can weigh in them affection against affection, sentiment against sentiment, thought against thought, soul against soul, a man's world against a woman's world? You come out with your stereotyped remark, the man is superior to woman in intellect, and then I open on my desk the swarthy, iron-typed, thunderbolted writings of Harriet Martineau, and Elizabeth Browning, and George Eliot. You come out with your stereotyped remark about woman's superiority to man in the item of affection; but I ask you where was there more capacity to love than in John, the disciple, and Robert McCheyne, the Scotchman, and John Summerfield, the Methodist, and Henry Martin, the missionary? The heart of each of these men was so large, that after you had rolled it into two hemispheres there was room still left to marshal the hosts of Heaven and set up the throne of the eternal Jehovah.

I deny to man the throne intellectual. I deny to woman the throne affectional. No human phraseology will ever define the spheres, while there is an intuition by which we know when a man is in his realm, and a woman is in her realm, and when either of them is out of it. No bungling legislature ought to attempt to make a definition or to say: "This is the line and that is the line." My theory is that if a woman wants to vote she ought to vote, and if a man wants to embroider and keep house he ought to be allowed to embroider and keep house. There are masculine women and there are effeminate men. My theory is that you have no right to interfere with any one's doing any thing that is righteous. Albany and Washington might as well decree by legislation how high a brown thrasher should fly, or how deep a trout should plunge, as to try to seek out the height or depth of a woman's duty.

The question of capacity will settle finally the whole question, the whole subject. When a woman is prepared to preach she will preach, and neither conference nor presbytery can hinder her. When a woman is prepared to move in higher commercial spheres she will have great influence on the exchange, and no boards of trade can hinder her. I want woman to understand that heart and brain can overdo any barrier that politicians may set up, and that nothing can keep her back or keep her down but the question of incapacity.

There are women, I know, of most undesirable nature, who wander up and down the country—having no homes of their own, or forsaking their own homes—talking about their rights; and we know very well that they themselves are fit neither to vote, nor fit to keep house. Their mission seems to be to humiliate the two sexes at the thought of what any one of us might become. No one would want to live under the laws that such women would enact, or to have cast upon society the children that such women would raise. But I shall show you this morning that the best rights that woman can own, she all ready has in her possession; that her position in this country at this time is not one of commiseration, but one of congratulation; that the grandeur and power of her realm have never yet been appreciated; that she sits to-day on a throne so high that all the thrones of earth piled on top of each other would not make for her a footstool. Here is the platform on which she stands. Away down below it are the ballot box and the Congressional assemblage and the legislative hall. Woman always has voted and always will vote. Our great-grandfathers thought they were by their votes putting Washington into the Presidential chair. No. His mother, by the principles she taught him and by the habits she inculcated, made him President. It was a Christian mother's hand dropping the ballot when Lord Bacon wrote, and Newton philosophized, and Alfred the Great governed, and Jonathan Edwards thundered of judgment to come.

How many men there have been in high political station, who would have been insufficient to stand the test to which their moral principle was put, had it not been for a wife's voice that encouraged them to do right, and a wife's prayer that sounded louder than the clamor of partisanship! Why, my friends, the right of suffrage, as we men exercise it, seems to be a feeble thing. You, a Christian man, come up to the ballot box and drop your vote. Right after you comes a libertine or a sot—the offscouring of the street—and he drops his vote; and his vote counteracts yours. But if in the quiet of home life a daughter by her Christian demeanor, a wife by her industry, a mother by her faithfulness, casts a vote in the right direction, then nothing can resist it, and the influence of that vote will throb through the eternities.

My chief anxiety then is, not that woman have other rights accorded her: but that she, by the grace of God, rise up to the appreciation of the glorious rights she already possesses. This morning I shall only have time to speak of one grand and all-absorbing right that every woman has, and that is to make home happy. That realm up one has ever disputed with her. Men may come home at noon or at night, and they carry a comparatively little while; but she, all day long, governs it, beautifies it, sanctifies it. It is within her power to make it the most attractive place on earth. It is the only calm harbor in this world. You know as well as I do, that this outside world and the business world is a long scene of jostle and contention. The man who has a dollar struggles to keep it; the man who has it not struggles to get it. Prices up. Prices down. Losses. Gains. Misrepresentations. Coughings. Underselling. Buyers depreciating; salesmen exaggerating. Tenants seeking less rent; landlords demanding more. Gold fidgety. Struggles about other. Men who are in trying to keep in; men out trying to get in. Slips. Tumbles. Defalcations. Panics. Catastrophies.

O woman! thank God you have a home, and that you may be queen in it. Better be there than wear Victoria's coronet. Better be there than carry the purse of a Princess. Your abode may be humble, but you can, by your faith in God and your cheerfulness of demeanor, gild it with splendors such as no upholsterer's hand never yet kindled. There are abodes in the city—humble, two stories; four plain, unpapered rooms; undesirable neighborhood; and yet there is a man here this morning who would die on that three-hold rather than surrender it. Why? It is home. Whenever he thinks of it, he sees angels of God hovering around it. The ladders of Heaven are let down to that house. Over the child's rough crib there are the chantings of angels as those that broke over Bethlehem. It is home. These children may come up after awhile, and they may win high position, and they may have an affluent residence; but they will not until their dying day forget that humble roof under which their father rested, and their mother sang and their sisters played. O, if you would gather up all tender memories, all the lights and shades of the heart, all the banquetings and reunions, all filial, fraternal, parental and conjugal affections, and you had only four letters with which to spell out that height and depth, and length and breadth and magnitude and eternity of meaning, you would, with screaming eyes and trembling voice, and agitated hand, write it out in those four living capitals, H-O-M-E.

What right does woman want that is grander than to be queen in such a realm? Why, the eagles of heaven can not fly across that dominion. Horses, panting and with lathered flanks, are not swift enough to run to the outpost of that realm. They say that the sun never sets upon the English Empire; but I have to tell you that on this realm of woman's influence eternity never marks any bound. Isabella fled from the Spanish throne, pursued by the Nation's anathema; but she who is queen in a home will never lose her throne, and death itself will only be the annexation of Heavenly principalities.

When you want to get your grandest idea of a queen you do not think of Catharine of Russia, or of Anne of England, or Maria Theresa of Germany: but when you want to get your grandest idea of a queen you think of the plain woman who sat opposite your father at the table, or walked with him arm in arm down life's pathway: sometimes to the thanksgiving banquet, sometimes to the grave, but always together—soothing your petty griefs, correcting your childish waywardness, joining in your infantile sports, listening to your evening prayers, toiling for you with needle or at the spinning-wheel, and on cold nights wrapping you up snug and warm. And then at last, on that day when she lay in the back room dying, and you saw her take those thin hands with which she toiled for you so long and put them together in a dying prayer that commended you to the God whom she had taught you to trust—O, she was the queen! The chariots of God came down to fetch her, and as she went in all Heaven rose up. You can not think of her now without a rush of tenderness that stirs the deep foundations of your soul, and you feel as much a child again as when you cried on her lap; and if you could bring her back again to speak just once more your name as tenderly as she used to speak it you would be willing to throw yourself on the ground and kiss the sod that covered her, crying: "Mother, mother!" Ah, she was the queen—she was the queen. Now, can you tell me how many thousand miles a woman like that would have to travel down before she got to the ballot box?

Compared with this work of training kings and queens for God and eternity, how insignificant seems all this work of voting for aldermen and common councilmen, and sheriffs, and constables, and mayors, and Presidents. To make one such grand woman as I have described, how many thousands would you want of those people who go in the round of godlessness and fashion, and dissipation, distorting their body until in their monstrosities they seem to outdo the dromedary and hippopotamus! going as far toward disgraceful apparel as they dare go so as not to be arrested by the police—their behavior a sorrow to the good and a caricature of the vicious, and an insult to that God who made them women and not gorgons; and trumping on, down through a frivolous and dissipated life, to temporal and eternal damnation.

O, woman, with the lightning of your soul, strike dead at your feet all these allurements to dissipation and to fashion. Your immortal soul can not be fed upon such garbage. God calls you up to empire and dominion. Will you have it? O, give to God your heart; give to God your best energies; give to God all your refinement; give yourself to Him, for this world and the next. Soon all these bright eyes will be quenched, and these voices will be hushed. For the last time you will look upon this fair earth. Father's hand, mother's hand, sister's hand, child's hand will be no more in yours. It will be night, and there will come up a cold wind from the Jordan, and you must start. Will it be a lone woman on a trackless moor? Ah! no. Jesus will come up in that hour and offer His hand, and He will say: "You stood by me when you were well; now I will not desert you when you are sick." One wave of His hand, and the storm will drop; and another wave of His hand, and midnight shall break into midnoon; and another wave of His hand, and the chamberlains of God will come down from the treasure houses of Heaven with robes lustrous, blood-washed and Heaven-glinted, in which you will array yourself for the marriage supper of the Lamb. And then, with Miriam, who struck the timbrel of the Red Sea; and with Deborah, who led the Lord's host into the fight; and with Hannah, who gave her Samuel to the Lord; and with Mary, who rocked Jesus to sleep while there were angels singing in the air, and with Florence Nightingale, who bound up the battle wounds of the Crimea, you will, from the chalice of God, drink to the soul's eternal rescue.

One twilight, after I had been playing with the children for some time, I laid down on the lounge to rest. The children said, play more. Children always want to play more. And, half asleep and half awake, I seemed to dream this dream: It seemed to me that I was in a far distant land—not Persia, although more than oriental luxuriance crowned the cities: nor the tropics—although more than tropical fruitfulness filled the gardens; nor Italy—although more than Italian softness filled the air. And I wandered around, looking for thorns and nettles, but I found none of them grew there. And I walked forth and I saw the sun rise, and I said: "When will it set again?" and the sun sank not. And I saw all the people in holiday apparel, and I said: "When will they put on working-man's garb again and delve in the mine and swelter at the forge?" but neither the garments nor the robes did they put off. And I wandered in the suburbs, and I said: "Where do they bury the dead of this great city?" and I looked along by the hills where it would be most beautiful for the dead to sleep, and I saw castles, and towns, and battlements, but not a mausoleum, nor monument, nor white slab could I see. And I went into the great chapel of the town, and I said: "Where do the poor worship?" Where are the benches on which they sit?" and a voice answered: "We have no poor in this great city!" And I wandered out, seeking to find the place where were the hovels of the destitute; and I found mansions of amber and ivory and gold, but no tear did I see nor sigh hear. I was bewildered, and I sat under the shadow of a great tree and I said: "What am I and whence comes all this?" And at that moment there came from among the leaves, skipping up the flowery paths and across the sparkling waters, a very bright and sparkling group; and when I saw their step I knew it, and when I heard their voices I thought I knew them; but their apparel was so different from any thing I had ever seen, I bowed, a stranger to strangers. But after awhile, when they clapped their hands and shouted: "Welcome! welcome!" the mystery was solved, and I saw that time had passed, and that eternity had come, and that God had gathered us up into a higher home: and I said: "Are we all here?" and the voice of immeasurable greatness answered: "All here!" and while tears of gladness were rolling down our cheeks, and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands, and the towers of the great city were chiming their welcome, we began to laugh, and sing, and leap, and shout: "Home! Home! Home!"

Then I felt a child's hand on my face, and it woke me. The children wanted to play more. Children always want to play more.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

How the Plainest Girl May Add to Her Attractions.

Studying the types of women in an inland town, we are chiefly impressed by their want of completeness. A closer analysis showed this to be not so much the result of actual ugliness in form and feature as from apparently poor health. The complexions were sallow or muddy-looking, and in many cases there was an attempt to correct this artificially; the cheeks were hollow, and the figure angular and undeveloped. The strongest impression these damsels made was that they were poorly nourished in body and mind. They were narrow-chested and narrow-minded, unable to take a deep breath of fresh air or fresh doctrine without shivering. Yet they were in the midst of a go-ahead community with no paucity of food or ideas.

If there is one desire universal among women, it is the wish for beauty. We all feel it alike, no matter how philosophical we may be. And this desirable quality depends so much upon health that no woman with any wish for personal comeliness can afford to neglect hygienic considerations. These ill-nourished young women we criticize are sallow because their food does not provide them with healthy blood to give them a rosy bloom, and they are angular because they neither build up muscle with food or exercise. They have no idea of walking for walking's sake; if they go six blocks they must take a street car, and though on the banks of a beautiful river, they never row—when out in a boat the attendant squire must handle the oars, add to this late hours and a diet largely composed of confectionery and trash, and small wonder if poor complexions and angular figures prevail. We should like to put these girls on a diet of wholesome food, minus strong coffee and unlimited candy; give them out-door exercise and regular hours, and make them take up some active interest, to keep their minds alive. They might think such rules "poky," but they would result in an increase of the personal comeliness we all wish for.

We can not hope for beauty without care for both body and mind; both must be kept in harmonious working, and the plainest girl may add to her attractions by these means.

Well enough to say that beauty is only skin deep, but it has a powerful influence on those around us, and it is only another sort of vanity which makes some women affect to despise it. Real beauty is simply perfect harmony of both mind and body, and we shall be actuated by something higher than vanity in wishing to secure it.—Rural New Yorker.

Scrofulous, Inherited and Contagious Humors Cured by Cuticura

Through the medium of one of your books received through Mr. Frank T. Wray, druggist, Apollo, Pa., I became acquainted with your Cuticura Remedies, and take this opportunity to testify to you that their use has permanently cured me of one of the worst cases of blood poisoning, in connection with erysipelas, that I ever seen, and this after having been pronounced incurable by some of the best physicians in our county. I take great pleasure in forwarding you this testimonial, unsolicited as it is by you in order that others suffering from similar maladies may be encouraged to give your Cuticura Remedies a trial.

SCROFULOUS ULCERS.

James E. Richardson, Custom House, New Orleans, on oath says: "In 1880 scrofulous Ulcers broke out on my body until I was a mass of corruption. Everything known to the medical faculty was tried in vain. I became a mere wreck. At times could not lift my hands to my head, could not turn in bed; was in constant pain, and looked upon life as a curse. No relief or cure in ten years. In 1882 I heard of the Cuticura Remedies, used them and was perfectly cured."

We have been selling your Cuticura Remedies for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of Scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, Cuticura, and Cuticura Soap. The Soap takes the "cake" here on a medicinal soap.

Chokinp Catarrh

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an asphyxiation, clutching your throat and pressing the life breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catharral matter? What a depressed influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange fancies? How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress towards the lungs, liver and kidneys, all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease, and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of Sanford's Radical Cure, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow sufferers. No statements are made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Each package contains one bottle of the Radical cure, one box of Catarrhal Solvent, and an Improved Inhaler, with treatise; price, $1.

—The shooting season opens to-morrow. A large line of prairie chicken stories are for sale cheap at this office.

—The Ladies' society of All Souls' church will meet in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon August 31. Tea at six.

—Postmaster Richardson complains that the names and addresses of those on the line of the free delivery are not being received.

—The dispatch published in another column would indicate that Burr Robbins' elephant is having enough fun to last several seasons.

—Henry B. Williams' remains will arrive in this city on Thursday. Funeral services will be held at the family residence in the first ward Thursday afternoon.

—Most of the Angleworm club will begin their fall campaign at "Binghams" to morrow. The unwary duck that shows himself around Lake Koshkonong from now on is likely to suffer.

—Tickets for the excursion to Chicago to-morrow, can be bought this evening at King's Book Store. Should any be unsold to-night they can be bought in the morning at the depot.

—Yesterday Messrs. Charlton & Clark sold a car load of heavy horses, weighing from 1,400 to 1,720 pounds each, to Mr. George Orr, of Manistee, Michigan, for use by the Chicago Lumber Company.

—"Caswell, in the first congressional district, will be a candidate for another term." So says Hon. E. W. Keyes, of Madison, who is regarded as one of the most sagacious politicians in the state.

—It is whispered that some of the west side young ladies have been following their big brother's examples in tackling the great American game—poker. One of them, in confidence, said she had lost three cents and was of the opinion it was a poor game.

—Next Sunday will be communion Sunday at the Presbyterian church. The preparatory lecture and session meeting will be on Thursday evening, September 1st. The pastor hopes to see all the members of the church who can, attend at that meeting.

—Fred F. Norcross who is checking off the cars of water pipe, rested to-day for the first time since the shipment began. Eighteen carloads have now been received. No more is expected until the latter part of the week, but ten thousand feet alone should certainly be enough to last for some little time.

—The water trenches in front of the west side engine house being opened to-day, the fire apparatus was taken out and left in position on the opposite side of the street. It is thought the pipe will be laid at that point and the trench filled in by night so that the apparatus can be put back into regular quarters.

—Members of the Masonic order are likely to find in the Rev. T. DeWitt Peake's sermon next Sunday evening much that will be of interest. The subject will be "The Symbolism of Solomon's Temple." Mr. Peake is a Mason of the thirty-second degree, and is well fitted to handle the matter in all its bearings.

—The ladies of Janesville, who furnish provisions for the temperance eating house of the county W. C. T. U., during the fair, are requested to leave their provisions at their new dining hall on the fair grounds. When this is not convenient, provisions may be left at the Wayside Inn. Contributions from Janesville are solicited for Wednesday and Thursday.

—The funeral of the late Miss Clara Grove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Grove, of Western avenue, took place at the Baptist church at three o'clock this afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Hodge, and were listened to by a large number of the intimate friends of the deceased. The remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment.

—Under-Sheriff Cuttis walked back from the three-mile crossing last night when he didn't mean to. He boarded a train to serve a summons on some one that was trying to dodge him by going through town without stopping, and the train pulled out before the service was completed. Cuttis threatens to levy on the train for interfering with an officer while in discharge of his duty.

—The paper advertising the McGibeny family is being pasted up to-day. What they advertise will take place, this we know from the record of the family. No troupe traveling has had better success. Each year adds to their perfections. This season they come with an entire new programme. It gives us pleasure to endorse this family, and we are warranted in saying that any one attending their concert at the opera house Friday evening September 9th, will be more than repaid.

—An exchange cautions owners of steam threshing engines as follows: "Owners of steam threshing engines should bear in mind that according to chapter 175 of the state laws of 1885, they are responsible for all damages arising out of the hauling of such engines along the highway, such as the causing of runaways, breaking of bridges, culverts or crossings. Owners of such property should bear this in mind, as it may save them considerable money and trouble."

—A first ward lady was surprised the other day to find in her grocery bill the item, "1-12th dozen green corn, 1 cent." It puzzled her, and when she paid the bill she laughingly asked what it all meant. Then the clerk gave an explanation. It seems that while her three-year old child had been walking past with nurse he had "grabbed" at the ear, and when he let go had let it fall over the edge of the basket. This was what suggested the item. The clerk's carefulness had saved his firm a penny, but whether it improved that lady's estimation of the firm's business methods is very doubtful.

—A superstitious subscriber, says one of our exchanges, who found a spider in his paper, wants to know if it is a bad omen. Nothing of the kind. The spider was merely looking over the columns of the paper to see who was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across the shop door and be free from disturbance. Several spiders are now making a tour of the town, and the chances are that no trouble will be experienced in finding a quiet retreat for a web. When a merchant becomes so well known that they don't need to advertise, the spider usually becomes attached to him.

—A class in sight reading and voice culture was organized last evening by Frank L. Hayden, in the Court Street M. E. church parlors. It was constituted of adults, the course being especially adapted to persons of mature years, rather than for children. It covers the ground required to be taken, in the musical instruction of our city schools, and the teachers who have this branch of work in hand in the schools will find it a very valuable assistant to them in their work. Such teachers are cordially invited to attend the next meeting, on Monday evening next, at the same time and place. The course of voice culture will be adapted to all singers. It will aim to correct bad habits in breathing, vocalization, enunciation, elocution and interpretation. While in certain phases of work the instruction is elementary, as lying at the foundation of thorough practical musical education, it is such as can be taken with profit, and should be taken, by all singers. Remember the next meeting.

—The little article which appeared in the last evening's Gazette as a burlesque on the washout, during a recent storm, suggests the more serious side of the subject, which briefly stated, means that but for the discovery and prompt action of some one, the St. Paul Express, going north at 8:15 that evening, would have gone into the cut. The facts concerning the matter are that three gentlemen, coming down the river on the little steamer about six o'clock, discovered the water pouring through a hole in the embankment. They remarked that the break was a dangerous one, and that the St. Paul train would soon be along. One of the party, Mr. John McCulloch, hurried from the landing to a telephone and notified the Northwestern employees, and an engine was immediately sent out and the extent of damage reported in time to send the St. Paul train to Madison by the way of Jefferson Junction. While an action of this character may not be classed as heroic, it certainly evinces a spirit of thoughtfulness, which is highly commendable, and which is thoroughly appreciated by every railway corporation. To save property and prevent the loss of life, is a constant study, and when a man from purely disinterested motives, starts out in a drenching rain to do a railway company a favor which may prevent disastrous and appalling results, he is entitled to more than a passing "thank you." The Northwestern people understand the situation, and will not be slow to appreciate it.

CHARLEY ZEININGER INSANE.

He Imagines Himself to Blame for a Frightful Accident, and to Be Hunted by a Mob.

"EMPORIA, Kan., Aug. 29.—Last night Charles Zeininger, train dispatcher for the Santa Fe at this place, suddenly lost his mind, and became possessed of the idea that he had been the cause of a terrible train wreck, and that a howling mob was outside the depot building attempting to break in and hang him. He finally became so violently insane that it took several men to overcome him and take him home, where he now lies a raving maniac. About two weeks ago he lost a young and beautiful wife, to whom he had been married about a year, and this is supposed to have preyed upon his mind to such an extent that he lost his reason. Both he and his wife belonged to one of the best families, and moved in the first circles of Kansas society. His condition is critical, and it is hardly expected he will recover, as brain fever will probably carry him off. He has a brother who is a prominent railroad man at Madison, Wisconsin, and has been telegraphed for.

The above was heart rendering news to the unfortunate man's mother and sisters in this city, who received the first intimation of his sad condition on the arrival of the Chicago papers this afternoon. Yesterday Mrs. Zeininger received a brief note from her son and a small package enclosing a photograph of flowers used at the funeral of his young wife—her photograph forming the central figure. In his brief note he conveyed the idea that he was well. The news contained in the above dispatch was, therefore, more severe than if a dispatch had been received announcing his death. The many friends of the unfortunate man here, where he spent his boyhood deeply sympathize with the family. Upon learning the sad news, Mrs. Zeininger immediately telephoned to her son, Conductor John Zeininger, at Madison, in order to accompany him to Emporia as soon as possible.

A BROTHERLY CROWD.

Three Norwegians Chop a Drunken Comrade Almost to Pieces.

Androw Hanson, Ole Oleson and Martin Christianson were arrested by Sheriff Ward, to-day for attempting to kill Chris Oleson.

As their names would indicate, all four of the party were born elsewhere. They attended a select lager-beer recital near Evansville Saturday night, and by eleven o'clock were fairly well primed.

Chris Oleson left for home first. He must have said something at which the others were offended, for they followed him and proceeded to re-open the matter for discussion. One of the three had a pocket knife, and, while his companions kept the victim entertained, he busied himself cutting out choice bits here and there for keepsakes. At least, so the victim claims.

When Oleson called on W. G. Wheeler to make a formal complaint he was a sorry looking sight. Three flaps of scalp hung back from as many great gashes on the head; another savage looking cut extended across the left side of the face, while beneath the left arm was a wound that had very nearly proved fatal. The warrants were promptly issued, and, as said before, Sheriff Ward is now holding the men for future reference.

SLOWLY BEING SHAPED.

School Commissioners' Ideas On Heating Have Changed.

Last night all of the School Commissioners except Commissioners Judd, Sutherland and Wilson sat in Clerk Metcalf's office and talked "heating apparatus" until ten o'clock. The only system before them were those supplied by R. C. Yeomans and Mills Bro. In order to secure more propositions, an adjournment was finally taken to Friday night at seven o'clock.

When the board first began to discuss steam they insisted on having indirect radiation. Afterwards they agreed to allow direct radiation in the halls, and now they intend to have both systems in every room in the house. The indirect will give ample ventilation while the direct will furnish warmth.

As for the building specifications, which were drawn to accommodate hot air furnaces, they answer for steam with very few changes. One additional flue is the only thing that steam-fitters think will be necessary.

THEY WANT A CHANCE.

Old Soldiers Think The Postal Authorities Treat Them Unfairly.

Grand Army men are much dissatisfied with the action taken in appointing mail carriers. They claim that old soldiers have not been given a fair chance.

The rules for such appointments are that no one over thirty-five or under eighteen years of age shall be eligible, unless he served in the late war. In case he did, age is no bar, but "all other points must be equal."

It is understood that the carriers have been already appointed, and a committee was appointed by W. H. Sargent Post at its last meeting to investigate. The committee were informed by Postmaster Richardson that the principal difficulty in selecting from the Grand Army would be in finding men as old as most of those in the organization that could do the work and compete successfully with men of thirty.

Whoever the successful candidates are, their names will not be known until the commissions arrive from Washington. This will probably be within a few days.

CANOEING ON THE ROCK.

A Brief Review of a Canoe Trip from Madison to Rock Island.

Delightful and Healthful Recreation—Beautiful Scenery.

Interesting Experiences and Old Types of Character.

A Rich Field of Observation for Botanists and Naturalists.

Under the title of "Canoe Life," Reuben G. Thwaite publishes a three column article in the Madison Journal detailing a canoe voyage on the Catfish, the Rock, the Fox and the Wisconsin, over six hundred miles. We copy that portion of the article relating to the Catfish and Rock river, as interesting reading matter at this time.

"Given a goodly store of patience, stout muscles, a practiced fondness for the oars, a keen love of the picturesque and curious in nature, a capacity for remaining good humored under the most adverse circumstances, together with a quiet love for that sort of Gypsy life which we call "roughing it," and canoeing may be recommended to the reader as one of the most delightful and healthful of out door recreations, as well as one of the cheapest. In the hope that the number of canoeists in Wisconsin may be increased, in future seasons, I venture to briefly outline the possibilities in that direction, which offer themselves at our very doors.

THE ROCK RIVER

route is certainly one of the most attractive. The student of history finds the Rock interesting to him, because of its associations with the Black Hawk war of 1832. When the famous Sac warrior "invaded" Illinois, his path of progress was up the south bank of the Rock. At Prophetstown lived his evil genius, the crafty White Cloud, and here the Hawk held council with the Pottowattomies, who, under Shaubena's influence, rejected the war pipe. Dixon is famous as the great pioneer ferry over the Rock, the land highway between Chicago and southern Wisconsin, for a protracted period in each year. Here, many a notable party of explorers, military officials and traders have rendezvoused in the olden time. Here was a rallying point in 1832, as well, when Lincoln was a raw-boned militiaman in a scouting corps, and Zachary Taylor and Jefferson Davis were of the regular army under bluff old Atkinson. A grove at the mouth of Stillman's creek, a Rock river tributary, near Byron, is the scene of the actual outbreak of the war. The forest where Black Hawk camped is practically unchanged, and the open rolling prairie to the south—where Stillman's horsemen acted at first so treacherously and afterwards like arrant cowards—is still there, a broad pasture land for miles in length, along the river. The contemporaneous description of the "battle" are readily recognizable to-day. Above, as far as Lake Koshkonong, the river banks are fraught with interest; for along them the soldiery followed up the Sac trail, like blood-hounds, and held many an unsatisfactory parley with the double faced Winnebagoes.

Starting from any Third Lake pier, the canoist may have a fine pull across that water, with Madison gracefully silhouetted against the northern sky. The Catfish—the "raving Yahara," of our poets—is a delightfully-varied little stream. Between Third and Second lakes, it winds through a swamp of wild rice and reeds and rushes, resplendent with water-lilies and arrow-root blossoms, and alive with birds,—the stately blue heron, the gulping troopial, cherry wrens, blackbirds by the thousands, sand-pipers, plovers, the plaintive bittern and the well-fed duck which sails around in the bayous all innocent of the approach of the "season." The lower sections of the Catfish have higher banks and are girted with many a pretty pastoral scene,—woodlands, meadows, upland pastures, charming glades and forested ridges, with prosperous farm establishments. There is a quiet beauty about the lower Catfish,—which becomes a goodly-sized stream before it pours its accumulated flood into the Rock,—that strongly reminds the traveler of some English streams. Poor "Jim" Ross, who knew them both so well, used to declare that the Catfish very much resembled the storied Avon, upon which Shakespeare doubtless canoed long ago.

The Catfish, with its vine-clad banks and overhanging trees, and delightful landscape glimpses of wood and field and forest, and stretches of babbling rapids, has one drawback to the canoeist. There are twenty barbed wire fences between Stoughton and the mouth. And the barbed-wire fence presents terrors to the voyager which no pen can describe. Every quality which I have set forth as prerequisite to the enjoyment of him who goes down to sea in a canoe, are twenty times tested; the canoeist who has survived the ordeal and yet posseth his soul in peace, may consider himself well equipped for all future experiences.

Rock river scenery is so varied, that it is impracticable to give an adequate notice of it in the space assigned to this article. It combines the rustic, the romantic and the picturesque,—prairies, meadows, ravines, swamps, mountainous bluffs, eroded palisades, wide stretches of densely wooded bottoms, heavy upland forests, shallows, spits and rapids. Birds and flowers, and rare plants and vines, delight the naturalist and the botanist. The many thriving manufacturing cities,—such as Stoughton, Janesville, Beloit, Rockford, Rockton, Dixon, Sterling and Oregon,—furnish an abundance of sight-seeing. The small villages,—some of them odd, out-of-the-way places, of rare types,—are worthy of study to the curious in human nature. The farmers one meets are of all types; the fishermen one is thrown into daily communion with, are a class unto themselves; while millers, bridgetenders, boat renters and others whose callings are along-shore, present a variety of humanity interesting and instructive. The twenty-odd mill-dam portages, each having difficulties and incidents of its own, are well calculated to vary the monotony of the voyage; there are more or less dangers connected with some of the mill races, while the lookout for snags, boulders and shallows must be continued, and sharpens the senses of sight and sound, for a tip over or the utter demolition of the craft may readily follow carelessness in this direction. The islands in the Rock are numerous, many of them being several miles in length, and nearly all heavily wooded. These frequent divisions of the channel often give rise to much perplexity, for the ordinary summer stage of water is so low that a loaded canoe drawing six inches of water will often find that any other channel than the one selected would have been more available; getting out to wade and haul the boat over the gravelly shallows being a not infrequent experience, especially just below mill-dams.

The Rock river, while thus shallow in summer, is a roaring flood in the spring. This year, the rise was phenomenal; in April, the water reaching an elevation of some fifteen feet above the present level. One of the most striking sights along the stream is the evidences of this torrent which meet the traveler at every turn. The banks had been overflowed for miles together, and back into the country for long distances, causing the hasty removal of families and live-stock from the gloomy bottoms; while ice-jams, forming at the heads of the islands, would break, and the shattered floes go sweeping down with terrific force, crushing the largest trees like reeds, tearing away fences and buildings, covering islands and meadows with deep deposits of sand and mud, blazing their way through the forest banks and creating sad havoc everywhere. From the thousands of broken trees which littered our route, the snags, the mud-baked islands, the frequent stretches of sadly demoralized bank that had not yet had time to reweave its charitable mantle of verdure, we were amply convinced that Rock on such a "spring" must indeed be a picture of chaos broken loose.

To give a correct distance by the river route, is one of the difficulties of canoeing. I present a table of the milage on to the Rock, the result of careful computation, aided by the best information. Any such table can be but approximate, as no one has cared to make exact measurements of the tortuous route, but the following is believed to be very nearly correct; it will be of use to those who desire to make the expedition themselves.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

to intending canoeists may be advisable. Traveling alone will be found too dreary. A good plan is to spend the nights at farm houses or village taverns, and carry your own lunchbasket for dinners and suppers. This can be done on either the Rock or the Fox, but not on the Wisconsin, where settlement is so sparse. On the latter river, you will occasionally have to tent out. As to baggage, fly very light, as a draught of over six inches will work an estoppel to your progress on any of the three streams mentioned. In shipping your boat to any point at which you wish to embark upon a river, allow two or three days for freight train delays. Be prepared to find canoeing a rough sort of sport. There is plenty of hard work about it, and a good deal of sunburn and blister. You will be obliged to wear your old clothes, and will not be overpleased to meet critical friends in the river towns you may visit. But if you have the true spirit of the canoeist, you will win for your pains an abundance of good air, good scenery, wholesome exercise, sound sleep and something to think about all your life."

Penalties of Imprudence.

Summer is at hand—the time of year when old heads and young become imprudent, get over-heated, cool off suddenly, catch cold, headache, nervous disorders, and a thousand and one other troubles. Preaching prudence is played out. The only thing to do is—after you have contracted one or more of these pains—to cure yourself as quickly as possible. Small pains are not to be neglected except at the risk of serious consequences. Remove them at once. It can be done by an application of one or more of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS recognized the world over as the best external remedy ever made. Mind you, don't neglect your little ills. They outgrow everything else, and if let alone cost you more than you can ever know. Remember ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS.

LEAVES OF TOBACCO.

They Go Into the Sheds in Very Good Shape.

Local buyers are keeping most of the markets reasonably lively. Their one complaint is, not that prices are high on good tobacco, but that growers fail to discriminate between leaf that is good and leaf that is not.

Since the rains Wisconsin tobacco has suddenly bounded into the front rank. Other states begin to admit that the Badger State will be a more serious rival than it has been for several years past.

The New York market for seed leaf during the week kept up its activity even better than was expected. Sumatra, on the other hand sold cautiously. The snap rush, which for years almost had been a characteristic of the Sumatra trade in our market, has during the past few weeks changed into a suspicious halting.

"As a natural consequence of the improved state of the seed leaf market," says the New York Tobacco Journal, "parties are rushing the tobacco raising sections to secure the cream of the '87 crop." This is very likely to be the case. It shows that what the Gazette said of the outlook some time ago was strictly true.

I have been for several years a sufferer from hay fever and severe head colds, and have tried other remedies in hope of getting relief, but have found none that could compare with Ely's Cream Balm. I would not be without it for any consideration. It is simply wonderful in its effect upon the nasal organs. S. A. Burtt, Wilmington, N. C.

I can cheerfully recommend Ely's Cream Balm to the suffering public for hay fever and stoppage of the air passages. I have tried it, and find it gives immediate relief.—J. E. Rector, 209 Rock street, Little Rock, Arkansas.
